

- 9 -

Abstract

A refrigeration apparatus with two compartments operating at two different temperatures wherein a freezer comprising a storing 5 volume adapted to receive products to be stored at a temperature below 0°C, an evaporator within said storing volume and a compressor located outside said storing volume, is fitted with a storing box, adapted to receive products to be stored at a 10 temperature above the temperature in the storing volume, located within the storing volume, said box being fitted with heating means.